Br JAMES MULROY

3 July 1905 – 2 February 1953

Born in Wolverhampton, James Mulroy was a plumber and builder and extended his skills to mechanics when he reached Rhodesia in 1931.

He served in Mhondoro, Mutoko, Bikita, Gokomere and Driefontein always with the pumps, engines, mills and vehicles of the missions. He made many friends among the people and shared his expertise with them. Many times he would speak of ‘getting stuck’ in the mud as he travelled extensively on the country roads.
